Rejected.

The senate committee rejected the nomination of John McNeil, of St Louis as U S marshal for the eastern district of St Louis

Why McNeil was Rejected

Gen McNeil's rejection was enforced by the very decisive vote of 32 nays against 7 yeas This action was based upon adverse reports from the judiciary committee accompanied with a statement to the effect that Gen McNeil, in the year 1862, while in command of U S troops at Palmyra Mo, ordered the execution of 11 citizens of that neighborhood, who had been arrested, but not yet tried on general charges of bushwhacking, and did execute 10 of them as a measure of retaliation for the abduction and supposed murder of union men in the same county McNeil's order required the execution of these prisoners if the missing unionists were not returned within a certain period and as nothing was heard from the latter the order was carried into effect by McNeil's provost marshal upon the designated day It was also stated by a member of the judiciary committee in executive session that the life of the 11th prisoner was spared by the provost marshal upon an enforced condition that the honor of the former's wife should be the price of her husband's release and that Gen McNeil continued this same provost marshal in service under him after the disgraceful fact became known

General Washington Notes.

Maine republicans here are much pleased with the news which they get from their state as to the success of the republican party in recent municipal elections In Portland the republican majority was larger than ever before known. Republican representatives here say that there is no question but that the fusionists will be routed all over the state at the approaching election this fall

Warner M Bateman of Cincinnati will remain here in charge of the national Sherman club until after the Chicago convention Sherman's friends are greatly pleased with his management.

Senator Ben. Hill has written Representative Speer, of Georgia, a warmly eulogistic letter praising his recent speech upon the subject of riders upon appropriation bills This was the speech applauded on the republican side of the chamber to the great disgust of some of Speer's democratic friends Prominent Georgia democrats say that Hill and Speer have both killed themselves politically There is every prospect of a lively break up in party lines in Georgia Hill Stephens Speer and Felton seem determined to act together on party questions

Belva Lockwood promises to produce evidence that her case against the Georgia senator, Hill, is bona fide and that Hill purchased Jesse Raymond's silence and absence.

Setting Him Right

From the New York Tribune

Certain sensitive Mississippi journals seem to have been seized with a shiver of alarm over the fact that the unknown successor of Senator Bruce has been widely advertised as a reputable gentleman and [illegible] hasten to assure the world that Senator George is a worthy and genuine representative of Mississippi [illegible] gives a complimentary blurb calling attention to the fact that he was chairman of the state committee when the method of 1875 were invented and that his heart throbs in sympathy with Barksdale [illegible] other [illegible] people of [illegible] who [illegible] to protect the peace of the community

RANDOLPH AND KERNAN IN THE [illegible]

WASHINGTON March 4

[illegible] McDowell [illegible] that he had no knowledge of the [illegible] Jackson's [illegible] from McDowell [illegible]

When [illegible] the [illegible] was marching [illegible] Answer—I do not know anything [illegible] before that [illegible] But [illegible] regiment [illegible] marching [illegible] longer for where they were going was a matter of which I was instructed

Question—Have you knowledge now of what was the actual force of the enemy under the command of Jackson or did you know that Jackson was in command of the enemy Answer—I did not know that Jackson was there I have been told he was there I do not know what his force was

Randolph read much more of the evidence and deemed that it supported his assertions

Logan said that he could show the fact to be the opposite of what Randolph had stated He asked the senator if he had read the report in the office of the war department to which he had referred and said that it ought to be there whether it was or not

Randolph said that he had read a certified copy of it

Logan asked why he had in view of that fact insinuated that it might or might not be there He went on to say that he had both the report and the evidence and not a scintilla of testimony could be found to show their disagreement He had from the printed records of the war department copies containing McDowell's report to Pope in which he stated that he was informed by Buford that 17 regiments one battery and 500 cavalry were passing along the Centreville road These were the exact numbers stated on the trial The senator from New Jersey had attempted to make out that McDowell swore falsely because he said that he had no knowledge of the force coming through a thoroughfare some miles away while the whole evidence shows that Longstreet's corps took the Centreville road There was no discrepancy whatever He called on the senator from New Jersey to produce a certified copy of any dispatch contradicting this assertion if he could If the case was to go before the country on false and manufactured statements he wished to find it out He had said this much in justification of Gen McDowell an honorable and high minded gentleman He gave notice of it because if it was necessary for him to go into an argument on evidence in this case he would endeavor to show that Porter did fail to carry out the orders he would have obeyed if coming from Gen McClellan or some such officer He resumed his argument of yesterday citing decisions to prove that there could be no review of the findings of the courtmartial In the course of his remarks he said that Porter was ostensibly seeking the removal of a stain on his honor but he stands with his hands behind him and says sixty thousand dollars will correct it better than merely restoring my honor The only way continued Logan in which Porter could be relieved was by executive pardon He had been told however that the president had never been asked to pardon him It was true a pardon did carry with it $60,000

Kernan—Does the senator think if I am convicted by a court martial, as I believe erroneously, that a pardon would place me where I would be placed if I could have a rehearing and show that I was originally innocent?

Logan—There is no rehearing in the bill There is $60,000 dollars in it but what kind of rehearing could be had that would have authority to bring Porter before it and retry him?

Kernan—Originally the president if he had seen fit could have annulled this sentence Now, I want to give him a chance to review on the report of the board of inquiry that finds the sentence was erroneous.

Logan—There is no power to grant a new trial but if there was, could any power of this government grant a new trial after the president had approved the sentence that would have authority to bring a man before it?

Kernan—In my view of the law, congress can pass a law where there has been judgment by court authorizing a review and a rehearing of a case

Logan—That is not the question Is there any power to authorize a new trial by a court that would have authority to bring Porter before it and try him?

Kernan—I believe there is power on application of the accused for congress to authorize a tribunal to rehear the case

Logan—I do not agree with the senator but what power would there be in such tribunal to try Porter for this offense?

Kernan—In my judgment, there is in the legislative authority of this government power to authorize a man who asks it to be reheard and retried

Logan—Is there any power to retry this man?

Kernan—If this bill passes as it is proposed to be amended it authorizes the president to review this case, and by retried, I mean review of the sentence

Logan—The senator has misread the bill and the amendment The amendment does not provide for a review, or to set aside but it provides that he shall have $60,000 and go back into the army

Kernan—The bill as amended authorizes the president in his discretion to do what he might have done before he approved its findings

Logan sent the bill to the clerk's desk and had it read and remarked Kernan had better read bills before he discussed or voted on them He reiterated his intimation that a pardon by the president was less cared for than the $60,000 appropriated by the bill He went on to argue that the legislative branch of the government could not constitutionally interfere with the judicial department by nullifying its judgments as proposed here You will hear from the country he said when you perpetrate this wrong on the people of the land and in tones that will not be misunderstood

At 3:30 Logan suspended his remarks to resume to-morrow

In the senate Thursday Logan continued his speech He proceeded to review the evidence presented before the court martial by which Porter was tried to support his assertion that it proved the charges that Porter disobeyed orders in the face of the enemy When Porter got Pope's orders to start at 1 o'clock that night and be at Bristol by daylight it was not his duty to inquire as to the nature of the night but to immediately issue orders to his adjutant general to be ready to start at 1 o'clock at night Instead of this it is evident that he said to those standing by when he received the dispatch There's a chance for a short nap and afterwards he consulted his officers not as to how the order could be carried out but as to how it could be evaded and in fact he did not start until 3 A M Two hours delay makes a great difference in the march of an army Drake DeKay who brought the order told General Porter that the road was good He thought that there were a good many wagons on the way as far as Catlett's but General Porter said Well we will start at 3 o'clock The excuses for this are that it was dark and that wagons obstructed the road General Myers swore on the trial that the wagons did not begin to move until daylight and that the road was in excellent condition yet Porter did not attempt to learn the condition of the road except by sending two aids to Pope to ask him to clear the way Logan said the wagons in the road were no impediment to a man that wanted to fight If he had wanted to fight he would have burned the wagons Logan did not claim to be a great commander but he had moved men through the woods in the darkest night and so could any man who did not want an excuse to shirk Another of Porter's excuses was that the artillery could not be got along the road But artillery was not essential The infantry could at least have been got through The evidence showed that Porter did not read or explain the order to his officers so that they did not know that an engagement had taken place or that there was urgent necessity for the presence of troops at Bristol by daylight Porter's mind seemed continually to turn away from the field and toward Washington [illegible] a letter to Burnside he said that [illegible]

[illegible]

Logan read further from the evidence to show that part of the command [illegible] march that night [illegible] on account of the darkness [illegible] He also read evidence that the [illegible] of the Confederate army [illegible]

[illegible] It is a matter of history continued Logan that some of the greatest battles ever fought were won by men who had just made long and difficult marches In illustrating this point Logan cited Washington's passage of the Delaware and the running of the blockade at Vicksburg in which he himself took part [illegible] men 22 miles before giving battle but we loved our country and that was why we did it [Applause.] He had started at 10 o'clock at night and marched 18 miles back over the road he had just traversed, and his men entered the battle of Baker's creek after that march singing Old John Brown

After the morning hour Logan resumed his speech on the Fitz John Porter bill

House.

The speaker announced the regular order to be consideration of the bill regulating the removal of causes from state to federal courts The question was on an amendment offered by Culberson and it was agreed to without division It amends section 2 of the act to determine the jurisdiction of United States courts to read Sec 2 That any suit of a civil nature at law or in equity arising under constitutional laws of the United States or treaties made or which shall be made under their authority of which the circuit courts of the United States are given original jurisdiction by the preceding section which may now be pending or may hereafter be brought in any state court may be removed by defendant or defendants therein to the circuit court of the United States for the proper district whenever it is made to appear from the application of such defendant or defendants that his or their defence depends in whole or in part on the correct construction of some provision of the constitution or laws of the United States or treaty made by their authority and any other suit at law or in equity in which circuit courts of the United States are given jurisdiction by the preceding section which are now pending or may here after be brought in any state court may be removed to the circuit court of the United States for the proper district by defendant or defendants who are now residents of the state in which the suits are pending Amendments offered by minority allowing the United States circuit courts to take original cognizance of any suit of a civil nature arising under patent and copyright laws between a corporation and any citizen of a state in which the corporation was carrying on its business was agreed to without division The minority amendments striking out the clause prohibiting United States circuit courts from taking original cognizance of any suit between a corporation and a citizen or a state except in cases arising under patent and copyright laws and in like cases in which said courts are authorized to take original cognizance of suits between citizens of the same state was rejected ayes 68 nays 157 A minority amendment was adopted providing that the act shall not affect the jurisdiction over or disposing of any suit removed from the court of any state or suit commenced in any United States court before the passage hereof The bill then passed 160 to 71

Committee reports were then called

The house refused to take up the political assessments bill, the republicans voting nay with a number of democrats

The house went into committee and Wood made an address on the funding bill

When the committee rose Gillette asked to have printed a bill to provide for the payment of the public debt, being a substitute for Wood's funding bill It provides that all bonds coming due in 1880 or 1881 shall not be refunded but paid from the fund set apart by the secretary of the treasury of all coin and paper money in the treasury and directing him to purchase silver bullion to be coined to the full capacity of the mint The bill also requires the secretary of the treasury to prepare 350,000,000 of treasury notes in lieu of the national bank notes, and makes such notes receivable for all dues and debts due from the United States and not otherwise provided for At least one half of the coin paid shall be in silver in case coin is demanded No more national bank notes shall be issued after May 1 1882 nor paid out by the secretary of the treasury, or any bank after May 1 1881 An income tax of three per cent shall be imposed on incomes of $1500 and a five per cent tax on $3000 or over In case the treasury shall not have enough to liquidate all bonds then only such shall be called in as can be redeemed Recess

THE CANNON'S MOUTH.

Men Who Have Been There, and Yet Died of Old Age.

[Detroit Free Press.]

There is nothing connected with a battle so exciting as to see a battery of flying artillery take position Troops open right and left, drivers laugh and shout, horses plunge and rear, and guns and caissons dash through and over everything until reaching the chosen spot A line of men waiting for the fight to open will show pluck and enthusiasm with the booming of the first gun, and the faster the battery is worked the more impatient will the supports become for close work No one will say that an army could be successful without artillery, and, yet those who hold the "cannon's mouth" to be King of terrors or the jaws of certain destruction, will feel disappointed when they come across statistics showing how little damage is inflicted by cannon compared with the musket

It is often said of a man "He would not be afraid to march up to the cannon's mouth" and yet it is not a high compliment to his bravery Just previous to the first fight at Bull Run a brigade of infantry made a reconnoissance towards Blackburn's ford to see how the enemy was posted A Michigan regiment, in reserve just outside the fight, was opened on by six field pieces in plain sight The firing was rapid and lasted for half an hour, and yet not a man in the regiment was even wounded Massachusetts troops, advancing into the woods, fought against cannon mounted on an earth work for fully twenty minutes and yet all their loss was from the musketry of foreign troops On this occasion no less than 200 round shot and shell were utterly wasted

During the Sunday fight at Bull's Run a full battery posted on the left, and just outside the fight, kept up a continuous and rapid fire on a highway three-quarters of a mile away, over which the Confederates were marching as they went into action or changed positions Shot and shell could be seen to strike, and outside of tearing a cover off an army wagon and the killing of a horse or two, no damage was done

At Fair Oaks the artillery fire was fierce and seemingly destructive Trees were rent and shivered, great furrows plowed in the ground and shells screamed everywhere over the battle field Yet the loss of life by musketry was in proportion of 20 to 1 The Michigan infantry lost more men in five minutes by infantry fire than any brigade lost in all day by shot or shell

The daily papers used to make a great ado over artillery duels which were pronounced fiendish blood thirsty and so forth At Antietam a Union and Confederate battery, not half a mile apart and in plain sight of each other had one of these duels lasting forty minutes The guns were worked for all that they were worth and when the duel [illegible] the Union loss was a horse killed the wheel of a caisson shattered and two infantry men lying in support killed A [illegible] sent the whole regiment over the ground occupied by the Confederate battery [illegible] were found two disabled horses, [illegible] and the wreck of a caisson During the forty minutes that those twelve guns were banging away with such little result four or five sharpshooters just to the right killed more than a dozen men and made [illegible] loss even [illegible]

[illegible] splendid position for his artillery at Fredericksburg [illegible]

At [illegible] Station when McClellan was [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] as I told have [illegible] There were four cannons and they covered about the same [illegible] that the advancing regiment did They [illegible] first against us, and in twelve [illegible] we lost only three or more men [illegible] grape and canister [illegible] with the guns [illegible] We marched square at the [illegible] front and the artillerists [illegible] better chance Had we been [illegible] 100 infantry [illegible] our loss would have been [illegible]

At Gettysburg more than 400 cannons belched away [illegible] shaking the ground as with an earthquake but the loss in killed and wounded [illegible] as great as that in [illegible] More than 100 [illegible] turned on [illegible] and yet men [illegible] held their hard [illegible] almost as [illegible] camp When Lee retreated and Sheridan pursued his wagon train over the mountain roads that rear guard of the Confederates planted two field pieces in the narrow road to check pursuit They were well served, had plenty of ammunition, and seemed to command the entire approach, but those guns were charged and captured with the loss of but three men

The fire of artillery is destructive only when it hits the same as infantry but it is easier to shoot a man with a musket than a cannon A shell has been known to blow twelve men into fragments, but perhaps twenty other shells were wasted before that one hit A round shot may crush two men as it plows through a regiment, but it will take no more Grape and canister will do murderous work at short range, but that range can only be had once in awhile and then preserved for only two or three rounds

The reprint of the Edinburgh Review for January (Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street New York,) has two articles dealing with important subjects of present interest That entitled Agricultural Depression admits that the agriculture of England is passing through a crisis of unprecedented severity and discusses its causes and effects under the heads of foreign competition, the land laws, and the relations of landlords and tenants The other article, Ireland, her Present and her Future, calmly discusses the schemes which have been proposed to remedy the present condition of Ireland and indicates the chief means by which her progress is likely to be assured Hamerton's Life of Turner is a favorable review of a work that will be welcome to reasonable admirers of the great painter The other articles are Military Relations of Russia and England which takes up the ever-recurring theme of Russian advances into Central Asia and describes the country and possibilities of an invasion British Light Houses, The Persian Miracle Play, Russia before and after the War Lord Minto in India, and Plain Whig Principles

President Washburne.

[From the Boston Herald]

The Hon E B Washburne is a very prudent man He is wise not to appear in the list of candidates seeking the nomination at Chicago It is not improbable that he would stand as good a chance as some others if he should push for it, but his best hold is in remaining passive and allowing the front rank of candidates to develop their strength It may be that Mr Washburne really believes that Gen Grant is to be nominated but in any event it is not necessary for him to create an antagonism between himself and the Grant boomers When Grant ceases to be a candidate we know of no man more likely to succeed to his strength than the man who discovered him in 1861, and his name is Washburne at present not a candidate for the presidency

Braddock's grave is protected by American hands On November 29 1871, Josiah King, and J R Murdock carried into execution a plan for inclosing the grave with a fence and setting out trees around it They planted an English elm, two English larches, two Norway spruces a willow descended from one imported by the late B A Fahnestock from the grave of Napoleon at St Helena and several varieties of American shrubbery The grave is in a field belonging to the estate of the late James Dixon, on the north side of the old National turnpike nine miles east of Uniontown Fayette county Pa

Getting Tired of the Expense.

[From the Chicago Inter Ocean]

No custom in America is more vicious than that of "standing treat" It is in small favor in any other part of the world Here a man is classed as "stingy" who does not invite the crowd who is about him to take a drink at his expense The party treated is expected in turn to return the compliment Many a man has been made a drunkard by the custom The legislature of Iowa has a bill before it to prohibit the custom and make it a punishable offense

TARIFF REFORM DEFEATED.

The tariff on steel rails is a monopoly which brings to the small though powerful ring which possesses it a clear profit of $20,000,000 a year. This prodigious sum is exacted from those who are building railroads in the newer and undeveloped parts of the country, as the west and south. Of course, however, the railroad companies are not the actual victims of the robbery. This blackmail of twenty millions a year, levied upon them, they distribute among the people, who are obliged to pay it in the shape of increased freight charges and passenger rates. Now the sum of twenty million dollars a year is too big a thing to let go of without an effort by those who enjoy it. Hence they have been making a fight in congress to keep the loot. And such a sum well managed can make a big fight. Money not only talks, but it convinces. It is able to show most powerful reasons for continuing a law which takes so vast an amount out of the hard earnings of the people and transfers it to the plethoric bags of a pampered monopoly. Hence it has secured from a majority of the committee of ways and means a report against a change of this plunderers' law. The committee made this decision by one majority, a fact which shows how nicely the monopoly had calculated the problem.

There is no courage in congress. Neither party exhibits any quality but that of mean cowardice. Both are afraid to move, lest some injury to their prospects in the presidential election be the consequence. So the incubus of cowardice sits upon both. The fact that neither dares to assert itself on any live question or practical principle, and at the same time the fact that each holds toward the other a spirit of the most intense animosity, shows that both have abandoned pretty much everything but a fell purpose of contending to the last extremity for the spoils.

On the tariff questions which the committee of ways and means has so shamefully dodged there was no party division. It was a division according to monopoly interests. On either side of the question there were both democratic and republican members. But the action of the democratic members is the more reprehensible because, in the first place, they are the majority upon the committee and in both houses of congress, and therefore have upon them the responsibility of legislation; and in the next place, because the democratic party has always professed to be the party of free trade, and no party should make false professions to the country. This matter has resulted precisely as THE OREGONIAN predicted last fall, when certain enthusiastic free traders of that party declared that an issue would be made for the presidential election by the adoption of non-monopoly measures of tariff legislation. It was declared that the democratic party would cut loose from its old issues made in the long quarrel between the north and south, and bring the contest between the parties to the living practical questions of financial and tariff reform. Has it done so? As this journal stated months ago, too many of its members in congress represent monopoly districts which make enormous sums of money by robbing the rest of the country; and Speaker Sam Randall, who represents one of these same robber districts, has made up the committees in congress to protect their "protected" piracies. In this shape the matter will stand till after the presidential election.

THE ISTHMIAN QUESTION.

The "bore" which De Lesseps is contemplating at Panama is to be through a mountain range from twelve to fifteen miles; the tunnel is to be 180 feet high from the bottom of the canal, and 65 feet wide at the water level. All the excavated material must be carried out to sea to find a dumping place. There are not a few eminent engineers who consider the scheme actually impracticable, and a recent writer has almost demonstrated that even if the canal shall be constructed it will be at a cost which will require exactions of such tolls as will make it cheaper for vessels to pass round Cape Horn.

But granting that the canal will be built, or rather that there will be an actual effort to build it, the next question is upon the attitude of the United States towards the enterprise. Many American journals are discussing this phase of the subject. Among the most prominent of these is the New York World, which urges reasons why the president should say to Colombia, Nicaragua, Mexico and all the world that the gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea are to be henceforth treated by the United States as American lakes. And it says that if Mr. Everett and Mr. Marcy in 1852 and in 1854 would not permit Cuba to be transferred by Spain to any other European power, and if in those years the United States would not enter into any treaty relations with France or England which might even tend to restrain or embarrass the freedom of our American initiative about Cuba, because Cuba is a key to the gulf of Mexico, assuredly in 1880 the United States for a still stronger reason should assert their paramount control over any isthmian waterway which must be in effect a continuation of the Mississippi river out to the Pacific ocean. To this it is added, with great force that the United States have much better reason to mount guard over any waterway leading from the Caribbean sea to the Pacific ocean than England has to command with her cannon at Gibraltar the waterway leading from the Mediterranean sea to the Atlantic ocean. There is not an argument employed by Mr. Everett or Mr. Marcy a quarter of a century ago as to Cuba and the paramount interest of the United States in Cuba as a military and naval point which does not apply to-day with quadrupled force to the isthmus and to the exclusive interest of the United States in the isthmus.

But De Lesseps has not yet undertaken the work, nor is the little item of money yet provided. Some of the estimates recently published put the amount required at a total of $400,000,000, though the amounts are so various, some of them not being above one-quarter of this sum, that no judgment can yet be reached as to what the enterprise is likely to cost, should it be seriously undertaken. It will do to wait awhile yet to see whether the scheme is likely to be undertaken in earnest.

A NEW ORCHARD PEST.

California journals give an account of a new pest which has appeared in the orchards of that state. It probably is not new in the sense of being unknown elsewhere; but it has never appeared in California, or perhaps on this coast, before. It is an insect called in California the scale bug. In some localities it has created great havoc. The San Jose Mercury says there is hardly an orchard in Santa Clara valley which is not more or less affected by it. The pest multiplies so fast, and its attacks are so insidious, that only a trained and experienced orchardist can guard against its approach, or even detect its presence, until it has obtained a firm hold of the trees. So far as is known, nothing has yet been discovered that will completely protect orchards from this new enemy. Indeed, so little is actually known of its nature and its habits, that all attempts to destroy it are necessarily of the nature of experiments—each man having a method of his own, but always holding himself ready to profit by the success of his neighbors. But it will probably take years of the closest observation and thousands of experiments before a really effectual remedy is discovered. The first thing to be done, as it seems to a non-professional observer, is to determine by a carefully recorded series of observations, at what time of the year the various developments of the insect are made. This preliminary knowledge has not yet been obtained. The legislature is urged by the agricultural press of the state to offer a substantial reward for an effectual remedy for the pest. We know not whether there are yet any signs of its appearance in Oregon.

MR. TILDEN ANNOUNCES.

Mr. Samuel Jones Tilden is now prepared to announce that he will undoubtedly receive the democratic nomination. Mr. Tilden is a man who makes few mistakes in a matter of this kind. The telegraph brings us the report heavily italicized. It is as well to explain that if ever there is occasion to telegraph with the emphasis of italicized certainty, it is when Mr. Tilden, after a long course of subterranean work, comes to the surface and announces that he has made a success of an undertaking. He is now able to make this positive announcement as to the nomination, from the fact that he knows better than any other man just how he has set the pins up to get it. He has had difficulties to meet, but he sees his way so far through that he can safely claim to be fairly out of the woods. His Ohio rival, Thurman, was beguiled to the worship of strange financial gods, and relying upon them was lost. Bayard he has "fixed" by having agents hunt up and publish his secession record. Hendricks never was in his way, because Hendricks never had any real strength, and would be hopeless as a candidate in the eastern states. Tilden has been reaching out and gathering in till he can now predict his triumph. He has his party in his toils as securely as he ever had a railroad when in a railroad wrecking enterprise. He will get the nomination because he knows how to get it, has the means to get it, and dosen't scruple to use them to get it. And he will be the most formidable candidate his party could nominate. He will make the most systematic fight ever made, surpassing even his own efforts in 1876. This time he will "make it slightly incremable," and not very slightly either. Any one who supposes he will be a weak candidate is laboring under a vast mistake. It is a mistake which the republican party would do well not to make if they expect to beat him.

Several taxpayers of this school district have moved, in their minds, to have the report of the directors which was passed into the archives so smoothly last Monday evening made more specific and certain. As submitted and accepted the report does not afford any data whatever from which the public can ascertain whether the schools have been conducted economically or extravagantly; whether the prices paid for supplies have been exorbitant or otherwise, whether the teachers' salaries are greater or less than they should be. The lumping of matters, as done in the report is entirely unsatisfactory. Such items as one thousand and fifty-seven dollars for wood; thirty thousand dollars for teachers salaries, etc., may be deemed by the directors all that was necessary to put in the report, but if the book keeper or clerk of a wholesale house or a bank should make up his books and show such a statement of the firm's affairs to the proprietors such a clerk would be summarily dismissed. The directors ought at least to have shown whether the district had used a thousand cords of wood at a dollar a cord or ten cords at a hundred dollars a cord; whether teachers are paid too much or too little; whether the janitor's supplies costing over $100 were worth that sum. In short not more than one fourth of the items in the disbursement account are set forth with the definiteness which is required in ordinary business transactions.

Mr. E. B. Washburne is apparently still alive to the fact that he is a very promising dark horse in the presidential race. It now seems that the Chicago Inter-Ocean's statement that he is not a candidate for the presidency must be taken with certain qualifications. He is not a candidate so long as Grant is in the field. This means that he exactly understands his position and the sources of his strength, and does not propose to allow his boom to be damaged by premature development. He is the natural heir of General Grant's strength and has nothing to lose by keeping in the background until his inheritance shall fall to him. He has a great deal to gain by not antagonizing other candidates in the early days of the contest. He is happily free from antagonisms now, and by keeping himself so will be more likely than any one else to gain the prize when the favorites shall have cut each others' throats. People who want postoffices and things will do well to keep an eye on Mr. Washburne.

Mr. W. H. Starbuck, of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, telegraphs THE OREGONIAN from New York that the ship Mary S. Ames sailed from that port on Wednesday last (March 3d) for Portland, with one thousand tons of railroad material. Three ships also sailed from Cardiff (Wales) last month with seven thousand tons of rails. The dispatch also states that the steamship Columbia will sail from New York for Portland on the 15th of April. She will bring two thousand tons of railway material, including a large amount of rolling stock. All this material is coming to the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company.

Pittsburg has not seen the last of the effects of the riots of 1877. Having paid for all the goods destroyed it was thought that would be an end of the matter but now the Pennsylvania railroad comes in with a demand that the county must pay the freight bills, which looks to the Pittsburgers like rubbing it in. It is safe to predict that the people, at least the taxpayers, will hereafter deem it the wiser policy to crush the riotous spirit at the outset than to pay damages resulting therefrom. The city tax alone, just levied for the present year, is twenty-six mills on the dollar.

The exhibit of the finances of the penitentiary for the last quarter, is as it has heretofore been under the present superintendent, a very good one. The excess of expenditures over earnings for the quarter is but $1563 80. It is certain that under the present administration of the prison its cost to the treasury will be much less than heretofore. This will appear conclusively when the next reports are made to the legislative assembly.

Nearly 300,000,000 postal cards were used in the United States last year. They are made at Holyoke, Mass., by a private concern, under the general supervision of a government officer. The work is nearly all done by machinery, even to counting and putting them up in packages of twenty five. The use of postal cards is said to have driven many makers of writing paper and envelopes out of business.

THE OREGONIAN must again give notice that it cannot publish memorial resolutions adopted by societies on the death of members thereof, without pay for the same. Demands for publication of such resolutions are so frequent that we are forced to make this rule. Those who forward memorial resolutions for publication will please take notice.

Capt J. H. Kunzie of Umatilla, is at the Clarendon.

Mr Barton Hill, the accomplished actor and cultivated gentleman, will leave this morning for the Sound. He will visit Seattle, Olympia and Port Townsend and probably Victoria before his return. If proper inducements are offered, Mr Hill will give a series of readings in the Sound towns. He is a finished elocutionist, and his entertainments cannot fail to afford pleasure and profit.

The Sentinel says "The numerous friends of Father Gallagher, of San Francisco will be pleased to learn that his health is much improved by his visit to the Sandwich Islands. THE SEARS INDICTMENT

SALEM March 4 1880

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

We notice in your local columns the paragraph relating to the indictment of Geo. C Sears of your city and beg space to correct the errors the writer has fallen into. Sears was indicted for larceny arrested in Portland and gave bond in the sum of $ 000 for his appearance to answer the charge and came to Salem under compulsion of arrest and bond. In the hurry of drawing the indictment the prosecuting attorney left out a material allegation which he feared might be fatal to it and stating that fact to the court asked that the indictment be dismissed and the case be resubmitted to the next grand jury. Such order was made by the court and under section 118 of the criminal code (page 351 revised statutes) Sears and the sureties upon his bond are answerable for his appearance upon a new indictment if found. The prosecuting attorney did not state to the court that he was prepared to admit there was not sufficient testimony to make out a case. On the contrary we understand him to hold the opposite opinion and that he has no doubt another grand jury will indict him. We know that Sears has defrauded us and we do no doubt there is sufficient proof to establish the fact

SUPREME COURT.

SALEM March 2 1880

Edgar Poppleton resp vs Yamhill county app ordered that mandate issue to circuit court.

J B Price et al apps vs A J Knott resp cause on trial

J C Trullinger resp vs N Kofold et al and B. G Crane apps. Judgment of court below affirmed with costs. Opinion by Kelly C. J

Syllabus—When a sheriff's sale of real property is set aside by the judgment of the supreme court and a resale of the premises is ordered such resale must be made in conformity with section 293 sub division 3 and 4 on page 163 of the code. And if upon such resale the property shall be sold to any person other than the former purchaser the clerk must first repay the former purchaser the amount of his bid out of the proceeds of the sale.

In the case of the Canyonville and Galesville Road Company vs Stephenson Gazely et al Judge Boise has filed the following dissenting opinion

I do not agree with the opinion expressed by the chief justice

1 For the reason that the Douglas County Road Company never located any road over the county road through the canyon. That is to say that the location by survey of one half a mile of road in the canyon some miles from where the gate is kept is not a location of the road in question. To entitle a corporation to take and use a county road as claimed in this case the part of the road so taken must be embraced in the line of the corporate road

2 On the other point the Canyonville and Galesville Road Company having located their road first thereby acquired the first right to appropriate this road. I fully expressed my views in my dissenting opinion filed in the case of the Douglas County Road Company vs. the Canyonville and Galesville Road Company and it will not be necessary to repeat them here

LATE DR. WM. MAXWELL WOOD

Surgeon [illegible] W[illegible] served through every war this country has been engaged [illegible] have taken a part [illegible] during the Seminole war [illegible] the [illegible] the war with China and he participated in the bombardment and capture of Barrier Forts on Canton river. During this trying [illegible] with a foreign power [illegible] Dr Wood [illegible] and ordered [illegible] when he returned to the United States [illegible] Vera Cruz Dr Wood [illegible] to take dispatches through the heart of Mexico to the president of the United States

Dr Wood was in active service from the first to the last day of the late civil war. Often sought by his corps to become its head he refused [illegible] compelled him to champion the rights [illegible] This he did [illegible] the Navy Staff Bill [illegible] was aroused in this contest [illegible] Dr Wood was never again [illegible] and he resigned [illegible] surgeon general [illegible] expired. His retirement from this office was followed by spontaneous tributes to his fidelity [illegible] ability and criticism on the course that forced him out of office. These comments were in editorials in the New York [illegible] World, the Baltimore American and many other journals irrespective of party

The two following editorials are selected. The first is from the New York World the second from the Tribune

PROTEST OF SURGEON GENERAL WOOD

The protest of William Maxwell Wood chief of the bureau of medicine and surgery against the decision of the "Council of Ten" on the staff question continues to excite a good deal of curiosity among naval men. From the stir it has created in line circles and the efforts of the navy department to induce Dr Wood to withdraw his protest, we suspect that the document contains some wholesome and unpalatable truths which they are anxious to conceal. Dr Wood's position happens to be a very independent one. The bureau was unsought by him nay it was actually forced upon him by those who deemed him the fittest man for the place. He can therefore afford to do battle for the rights of his brethren and knowing the sterling blunt straight forward character of the man we have the fullest confidence in his ability to overcome every obstacle to the advancement of the medical corps of the navy

THE SURGEON GENERAL OF THE NAVY

Surgeon William Maxwell Wood who * * has lately resigned the office of the bureau of medicine and surgery of the navy * * * has passed his whole life in the navy filling every grade and acting as fleet surgeon in the Pacific during the Mexican war as fleet surgeon in the Chinese squadron during the English war in China and as fleet surgeon in the Atlantic squadron during the rebellion. Combining skill in his profession with the highest tone of character and energy in organization he has effected great improvements in the discipline and standing of his corps. It was chiefly owing to his writings and personal influence that the staff rank bill was passed by the last congress. He retires from the highest rank attainable in his profession * * The country owes to him to a great degree the acquisition of California he having carried to our fleet in the Pacific from the City of Mexico the news of the Mexican war thus enabling our fleet to anticipate the English in the seizure of that province

Dr Wood's skill in his profession and his reputation as a surgeon were during his active practice the very best

THE COURTS.

COUNTY COURT, RICE, J.—COMMISSIONERS'.

In the matter of a petition for the location of a county road east of the Sandy river from The [illegible] and Sandy toward Gordon creek—Report of the viewers on damages read and ordered allowed and road established in accordance with the view and survey heretofore made.

A TERRIBLE RIDE.

Evening set in cold and gray. Until noon the sky had been clear; but, as the sun declined, a thick, leaden haze had obscured his light, and appearances gave promise of the coldest night of an unusually cold season The up train on C—— Railroad was detained by the immense drifts of snow which had formed upon the lines; and it was past 9 o'clock when the puffing locomotive came slowly and laboriously up to the little depot at A——, the northern terminus of the route.

As is usual in country places, as well as in those more thickly settled, quite a little company had assembled in the principal room of the building, to talk over the severe weather, and discuss the probability of the non-arrival of the train that night. With the first sound of the ominous whistle, the narrow door of the depot was crowded with anxious heads, each striving to pierce further into the darkness than its neighbor.

The usual variety of passengers alighted, each one anxious about his or her baggage, and each one particularly certain that it was in just the place where the freight master protested it was not; but, it is with only one of this motley assemblage that we have to do

She was a young lady, our heroine, and dressed with extreme elegance. Springing hastily to the platform, scarcely touching the extended hand of the gentlemanly conductor, she gazed anxiously around her for a moment, and then made her way to the window of the office, which was pushed back to allow the official within to receive the express boxes, and separate the mails. The man started as her low musical tones fell on his ear.

"Can you tell me the distance to Wolfburn?"

"Twelve miles marm; and no passage there for five days; roads completely blocked!" and he was turning away

She put out her hand to stay him. "No passage? It cannot be! I must be in Wolfburn within four hours, sir! My mother is dying there!"

"Sorry—very sorry, indeed! but it is an utter impossibility to think of such a thing! Why, marm, the thermometer stands at ten degrees below zero this very minute, and it'll be still lower before midnight!"

"I know the cold is intense, I dare say the way is replete with danger; but my mother, the mother who brought me into existence! is dying there, and I must go to her!" The voice of the young girl became choked and broken as she ceased

"It's a hard case, I must admit; but it's no use to think of attempting to get to Wolfburn to-night—the coach road is as impassable as the Alps, and the only track is across the lake, but neither man nor beast could live on that bleak route half the distance! I am sorry, marm, but I only speak the truth about it."

The pale face of the young lady blanched still paler, but her voice was firm

"Cold and perilous though it be, I must go to my mother. Were I sick, she would move heaven and earth, but she would stand by my bedside! I cannot let her die and so very near her, and yet not in her presence! I must go, if I go on foot and alone!"

"Rash girl! it would be no better than suicide to attempt the passage of the Winnipiseogee on such a night as this, even with a strong horse and an experienced guide, and such cannot be found, who will brave the horrors of the night for love or money!"

"Lady, I will go with you!" and the crowd parted before the tall, finely-built young man who came hastily to the side of the strange girl. "I am unknown to you, and my station in life is humble; but if you will trust me the confidence shall not be misplaced!" He removed the cap from his head, and stood erect and dignified before her—a strikingly handsome youth, clad in a rough garb of gray. There was the fire of a lofty spirit burning in his deep, hazel eye, and around the classically carved lips dwelt an expression half stern, half tender The clear blue eyes of the lady met his fixed yet respectful gaze searchingly—she put her hands in his

"God bless you, sir! There is one true heart in New Hampshire! I will trust you"

An expression of pride and gratitude swept over the young man's face, and he bent his head low before her as he said In half an hour I will return for you," and with a firm elastic step, he left the depot

The young lady dropped into a seat by the fire, and, covering her face with her hands, seemed lost in a painful reverie The listless "hangers-on" about the place gathered together in a little knot about the office window—there was a new subject to discuss

"Fool [illegible] W[illegible] Argensen [illegible] take the [illegible] H[illegible] be frozen stiff [illegible] breaks" [illegible] miracle [illegible]

A[illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

An [illegible] with [illegible] anxiously out into the darkness [illegible] should be a squall—[illegible] speaker's [illegible] sentence The [illegible] for mutual protection [illegible] there was silence of a few moments broken at last by the [illegible] man who had spoken first

Only last winter poor Henry Blo[illegible] was frozen to death on the shore of Rattlesnake Island and then just a week afterwards poor Capt'n Dexter—[illegible] the lake all his lifetime—got bewildered in the squalls, and died out there all alone in the dark and cold, and his folks to home a [illegible] light expectin' him Oh it was awful—dreadful to think of but nothin' to what it would be for a woman—a young, tender beautiful woman—to meet the hardships of the cold mountains and be turned to dry [illegible] his course [illegible]

At this moment the brisk jingle of sleigh bells was heard at the door and before the eager listeners could spring forward to open it upon the new comer Will Argensen entered wrapped up in a buffalo robe

"I am ready to attend you to Wolfburn if you still think of going," he said, addressing the lady She arose quickly at the sound of his voice and accepting the large blanket which the ticket master kindly offered her as a further protection to the inclement weather she followed her conductor out into the dark piercing night and was lifted into the sleigh which awaited them Argensen wrapped the buffalo closely around her and attaching the large glass lantern which he carried in his hand, to the front part of the cutter, he sprang in The horse was a large powerfully built animal, of a dark, iron grey and his fiery eyes, as well as his long, slender neck showed him spirited and strong

The eager crowd of idlers left their warm quarters by the stove, and gathered around the sleigh and its occupants some expostulating on the madness of the twain in setting out on such a night—others wishing them God speed, and amid the murmered acclamations, they drove off.

Half a mile on terra-firma, and the horse's feet rang sharp and clear on the ice of the Winnipiseogee The summits of the tall blue mountains which arose on either side of our travelers were shrouded in an impenetrable mist, and the light wind which blew was insufficient to break up the clouds of rime that filled the air

Little or no conversation passed between these two people so recently thrown together Argensen was occupied with thoughts of the perilous undertaking before them the lady with sad images of her dying mother—dying without a kiss of her only child to smooth her passage through the dark void between time and eternity!

With anxious eye the young mountaineer scanned the thickening air, and the terrible thought would flit across his brain, "If the squalls should rise!"

Nearly four miles of the journey was passed over in safety They had reached the dreariest part of the road, and the darkness became almost palpable Mountains black, as Erebus completely walled in the shining track of ice, and by the pitching of the cutter, and the careful progress of the horse, they knew that drifts of snow and bulges of ice obstructed the way. The wind steadily increased, and cut the face like a sharp icicle The breath of our travelers congealed almost before it left their bodies, and the dark sides of the horse were covered with a feathery frost

The cold became intense, permeating the thick buffalo skins as if they had been mere cobwebs, and the delicate frame of the young girl was chilled through Bravely she suppressed the deathly shivers that involuntarily stole over her, but Argensen felt the effect, and, drawing his arm around her, he said in a low earnest tone

"Lady, we are strangers, but it is no time to stand for ceremony when one is freezing Sit as close to me as possible, and lay your face here upon my breast, the wind is rising to a gale, and the squalls will be upon us ere long."

With one powerful hand he guided the horse, with the other one he held close to his side the trembling form of his companion, and the noble gray, as if feeling that everything depended on their reaching the end of the journey before the breaking of the squall over their heads, tore bravely on

In vain! in vain! in vain! The mad wind bore along the ebon clouds with the swiftness of lightning, and scarcely more than five miles of the way were passed ere it burst upon them in all its fury The dreaded "white eye" enveloped them Hail and minute particles of frozen snow, in thick, continuous sheets, blinded the eyes of the brave Argensen, and shut out the dim overarching sky The horse drew up under the lee of a wooded island, and could be induced to go no farther Argensen clasped both arms around his paralyzed companion, and waited the progress of the storm. Heavily, and more heavily she leaned upon his shoulder, and at length the fatal truth rushed over him with appalling force—the sleep that invariably proceeds death by freezing was upon her! He sprang up wildly

"For the love of heaven, awake! Rouse yourself! To sleep is death!"

A faint moan was the only response He tore off the buffalo robes which enveloped her and vigorously chafed her cold hands, and breathed upon her icy lips For a time he feared that he held only death in his arms but at last, by the dim light of the lantern he saw a flush steal over her face, and her eye lids slowly unclosed

"Is it my mother holding me?" she said, dreamily, then, as if remembering all, she drew herself away from the arms that supported her Argensen soothed and encouraged her, until the storm broke and the clouds were swept away A few faint struggling stars burst through the billows of vapor, and like angels' eyes, looked down upon the wide desert of snow Two hours they waited there—two hours of agonizing suspense—ere the noble horse could be made to pursue his way With more than a mere brute instinct, he knew the danger of the way in the thick darkness and storm, and refused to subject his master to greater peril

As the wind sunk to rest and the sky became clearer once more, our travelers went on, and after an hour's swift trot they arrived safely at Wolfburn The necessary inquiries being made regarding the whereabouts of the young lady's mother Argensen drove her to the house specified, and yielding to the urgent solicitations of his fellow voyageur he went in with her

The first question of the afflicted girl was answered in such a manner that the warm blood flushed over her cheek and brow and a fervent 'Thank God' burst from her lips

"Mrs. Huntington is much better" said the lady whom Miss Huntington addressed as "aunt" and Julia—for that was the name of her who had put to such a trial the courage of William Argensen—advanced towards him, and laying both her hands in his she burst into a flood of tears

He took both the hands and pressed them to his lips It was all the reward he asked—all she sought to give

* * * * * * * * *

One year later, and in one of the most splendid residences in Boston there was a wedding—the groom was William Argensen the bride Julia Huntington That night of horror had become the parent of a love stronger than death—more enduring than life and before that love the haughty pride of Julia's mother had melted away like snow before the sunshine The noble mountaineer [illegible] asked if that love left the hills and valleys [illegible] lived, and in a celebrated university [illegible] mind, already rich in the royal gifts of Nature's God became refined in the [illegible] of heaven sent knowledge

They are very happy in [illegible] home—that fair young wife and her noble husband and often do they bless the fortune that caused them to pass that night upon the Winnipiseogee

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHEA or SEMINAL WEAKNESS or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY Nearly two thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

PORTLAND O

LANDS,
PEN D'OREILLE DIVISION

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY

Is now offering for sale nearly

3,000,000

Acres of its lands in the Pen d Oreille Division in Eastern Washington which are comprised in the odd numbered sections for forty miles on each side of the rail road as now located from the mouth of Snake River in Washington Territory to Lake Pen d Oreille in Idaho These lands of unexcelled fertility and adapted to farming on any scale that may be desired are offered by the Railroad Company at such prices and terms as cannot fail to induce settlement and cultivation causing a rapid growth in population of the country, and increase in value to those who now purchase

The following Resolution of the Board of Directors of the Railroad Company passed November 19th, 1879, fixes the cash price of land to actual settlers at two dollars and sixty cents per acre which it is believed is a lower price than has ever been voluntarily placed upon its lands by any land grant company This is in fact, cheaper than the settler can purchase the same class of land of the Government under the pre-emption law, for the expense attending the making of final proof and the journey to the land office which he must necessarily make in order to complete his entry, is more than the ten cents per acre, added to the government price by the Railroad Company

Resolved That the Agricultural Lands of the Company west of the Missouri river to Puget Sound shall be offered for sale to actual settlers at Government price of $2 50 per acre with an addition thereto of ten cents per acre to be paid to the Company to reimburse it for the cost of selecting, surveying and conveying said land

This resolution does not apply to coal or iron lands not to lands chiefly valuable for timber, nor to lands required for town sites or suitable for manufacturing sites nor in regions where water is scarce to lands containing springs or other natural supply where it shall be for the interest of settlers at large that such water privileges shall not be exclusively held or controlled by any individual nor to the lands required for the use of the Company in connection with the operation of the road

To persons wishing to purchase on time the remarkably low price of four dollars per acre is given on the following terms One fourth cash at time of purchase the balance in four equal yearly payments at 7 per cent interest The above price for time sales is adopted for the present, but may be subject to change in the future

All persons who have filed with the Railroad Company notices of intention to purchase or Settlers Applications as they are called for land in this Division (except for the class of lands reserved by the terms of the resolution above given) and who have continued to reside upon or cultivate the land applied for, are requested to complete their purchase by making cash payment, or time contract for the same For this purpose application should be made to the Railroad Land Office at Colfax

Persons who have not made actual settlement or improvement upon land they may have applied for have no right to the first privilege of purchase such lands will be sold to the first applicant. Those persons who have in good faith settled upon and improved the Company's land should lose no time in securing the same as after a given time the land is subject to sale to any other person

The land in this division being now offered for sale no more Settlers Applications will be filed
